A German Fleeced of $100 on the Northwestern Train.

The "Baggage Master" Game Worked on Him to Perfection.

Mysterious Proceedings Concerning a Hack and Its Occupants.

A Pocket Picked by Three-Card Monte Men on a Train.

Grand Coming Party by the A. O. of H. and Resone's Prize Ball. John Morse, a respectable looking and apparently well informed German tickets for mutual examination and from Clars, Merrick county, Nebraska, got caught by sharpers in this city from which. yesterday morning while in transit to Rochester, N. Y., who, as Morse says, seemed to be well acquainted with his friends there. Morse feels cheaply enough over the affair as he supposed he was able to detect honest men amongst rogues. He says it was only about two or three weeks ago that he read an account in THE BEE of a confidence game successfully carried out in this city and he made up his mind $25. to keep out of it; but, alas! his human nature was too weak. He was taken in and now knows how it is himself. He sraved at the depot in this city evening of January 11, 1882: Tuesday night, but too late to take 81 feet on Madison street, L. 48 Org the Northwestern train bound east, He waited until yesterday morning, when he came to Council Bluffs, and with a friend with whom he had become acquainted on their way to Omaha, he boarded the train and took a seat. Before the train started a man came through the train having upon his cap the words "Baggage Master N. P.IR. R." He stepped up to his friend and wanted to know how it was about the freight. The fellow jumped up, "Freight, whyg-d-- it, I shan't pay that until I get to Chicago. That was the understanding when I shipped it." The baggage man replied chance in the drawing. that it was only billed to Council Bluffs and before it went further the freight must be paid, amounting to sbout $1.00. The fellow handed him a check on a bank in Kansas City, signed by "Chair and Table," request-The pretended baggage man said he did not want it, when his friend reamined the check and returned it with the remark that

About the time the train began to move he had come to the conclusion that a firm by the name of Chair & on Tuesday evening. Table might possibly need some provisions to make it perfectly stable. "Chair & Table, Chair & Table," he repeated several times; "certainly there is a mistake," He rushed frantically out of the car and cried for the baggage-master, from Ciark. They not only "confided" him out of $100 but also his ticket, which cost him $25. It was done in the following manner: Sharper No. I asked Morse how much he paid for his ticket. He replied $25. "Why," said the sharper, "I procured mine for $20." They then exchanged the sharper mixed them up so that poor Morse couldn't tell

PEPPER'S POCKET PICKED.

A man by the name of Pepper from Nance county, Nebraska, adjoining Merrick county, where Clark is located in which Morse lives, also got salted in this city yesterday. While on the train he noticed some three-card monte men roping in a couple of greenhorns. He stepped up and whispered to them not to take part in the game. While in the act one of the men purloined poor Pepper's pocket-book containing
